

U-Entertainment

Food Network's best

By Natalie Haughton
Daily News Food Editor

Tuesday, September 28, 2004 - Here's a fun book: "Food Network Best of The Best Of," by Jill Cordes & Marc Silverstein, hosts of the network's popular show of the same name. The authors take you on a trip throughout the country to well-known restaurants and holes-in-the-wall, along with purveyors that offer good food and drink.

Along the way, the book includes food facts and trivia, all kinds of tips and 85 recipes. Cooks, travelers, foodies and others will savor this delectable volume that showcases the variety of eating available in America.

Ever been to Arturo's Puffy Taco in Whittier, Chef Franco's at the William L. Morris Dealership in Fillmore, the Gumbo Pot in the Los Angeles Farmers Market or Orfila Vineyards in Escondido? These are just a few among the Southern California listings. Take this guide with you when you travel. You're bound to eat well and make a few discoveries along the way.